

Detailed views of artifacts are available by clicking on red numbers

Scardia et al. Figure S6

334-1091 Heavy patinated and abraded bifacial chopper. Because of blunt margins, it is impossible to differentiate the sequence between the two faces.

Back to section

0 cm 5
FP 2016

334-1092 Primary retouched flake.

Back to section

334-1115 Very abraded flake with marginal retouch.

Back to section

334-1116 Retouched flake, partially denticulated, with fresh margins.

Back to section

0                    cm                    5
 FP 2016

334-87 Thick partially cortical flake with dihedral butt; very fresh.

Back to section

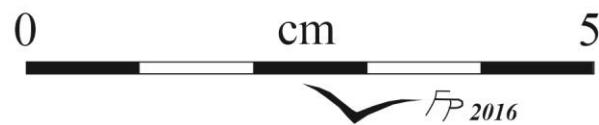

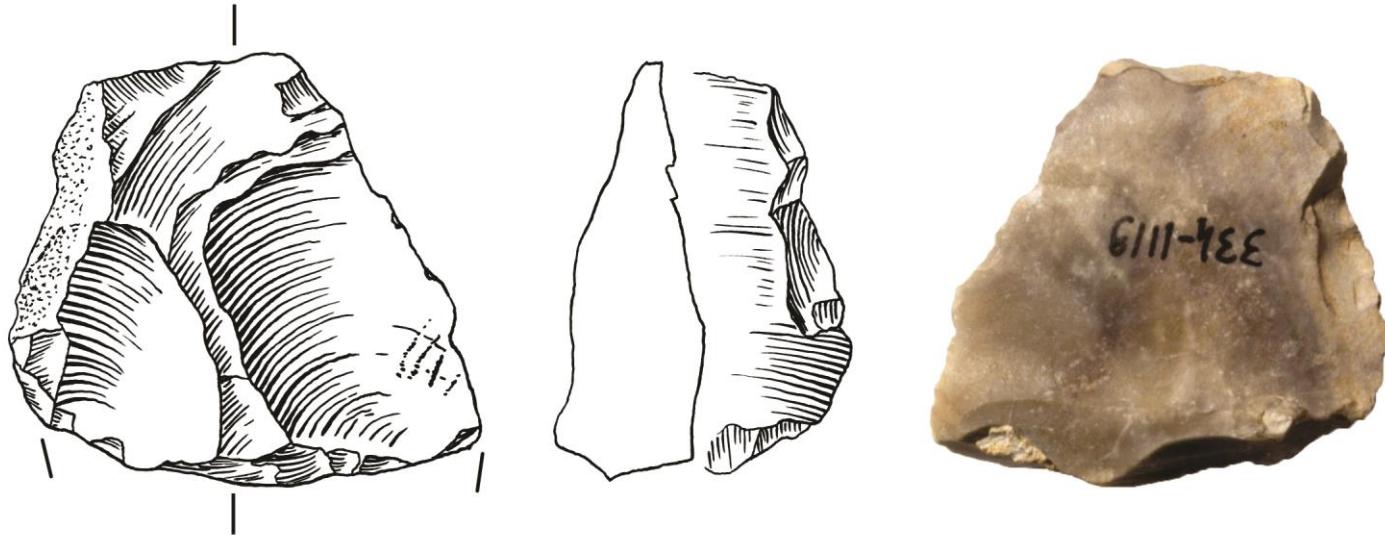

334-33 Undetermined core, trihedral at its end

Back to section

334-37 Very rolled flake, with marginal retouches;
brown flint with gray patina.

Back to section

334-1119 Proximally broken flake with marginal retouches on the lower face.

Back to section

334-1086 Unipolar small and fresh core on flint pebble.

Back to section

334-1121    Flake with Clactonian retouch defining a pseudo-denticulated.

Back to section

334-1084

Unipolar flake on brown-zoned flint.

Back to section

0 cm 5

FP 2016

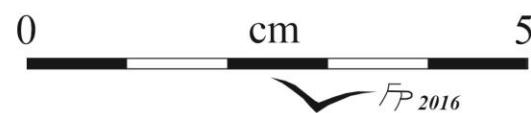

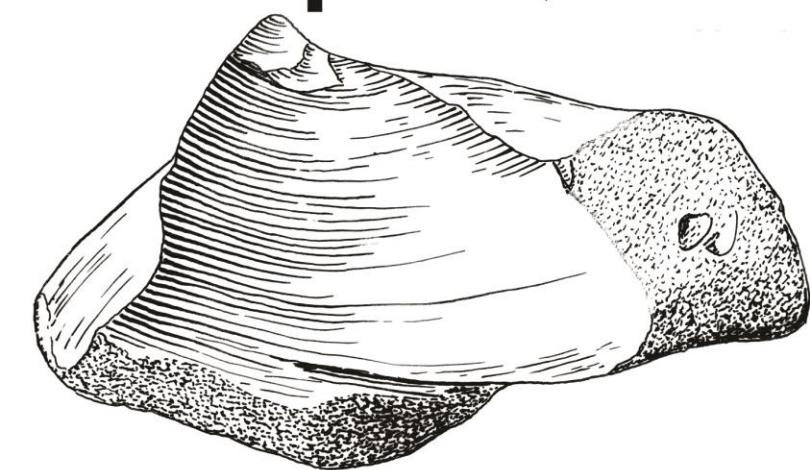

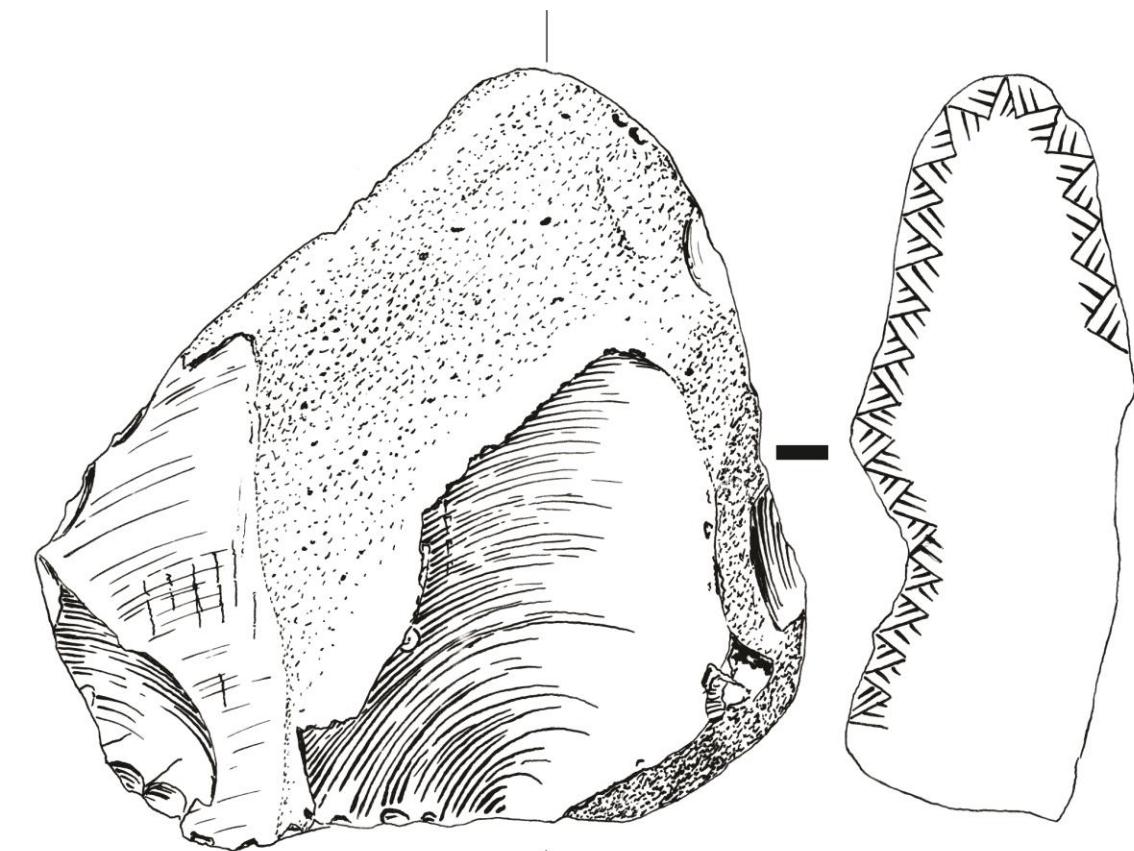

Back to section

334-1126 End chopper / core for elongated flake.

334-1128 Very abraded, convex core, with alternating flake-scars; probably final use as hammer, as shown in in box.

Back to section

334-78 Bifacial core on flint cobble;
the main flaking surface is unidirectional.

Back to section

334-1077 Fragmentary flint flake.

Back to section

0 cm 5
FP 2016

Back to section

334-77/1 Centripetal core, partially bifacial, on brown flint..

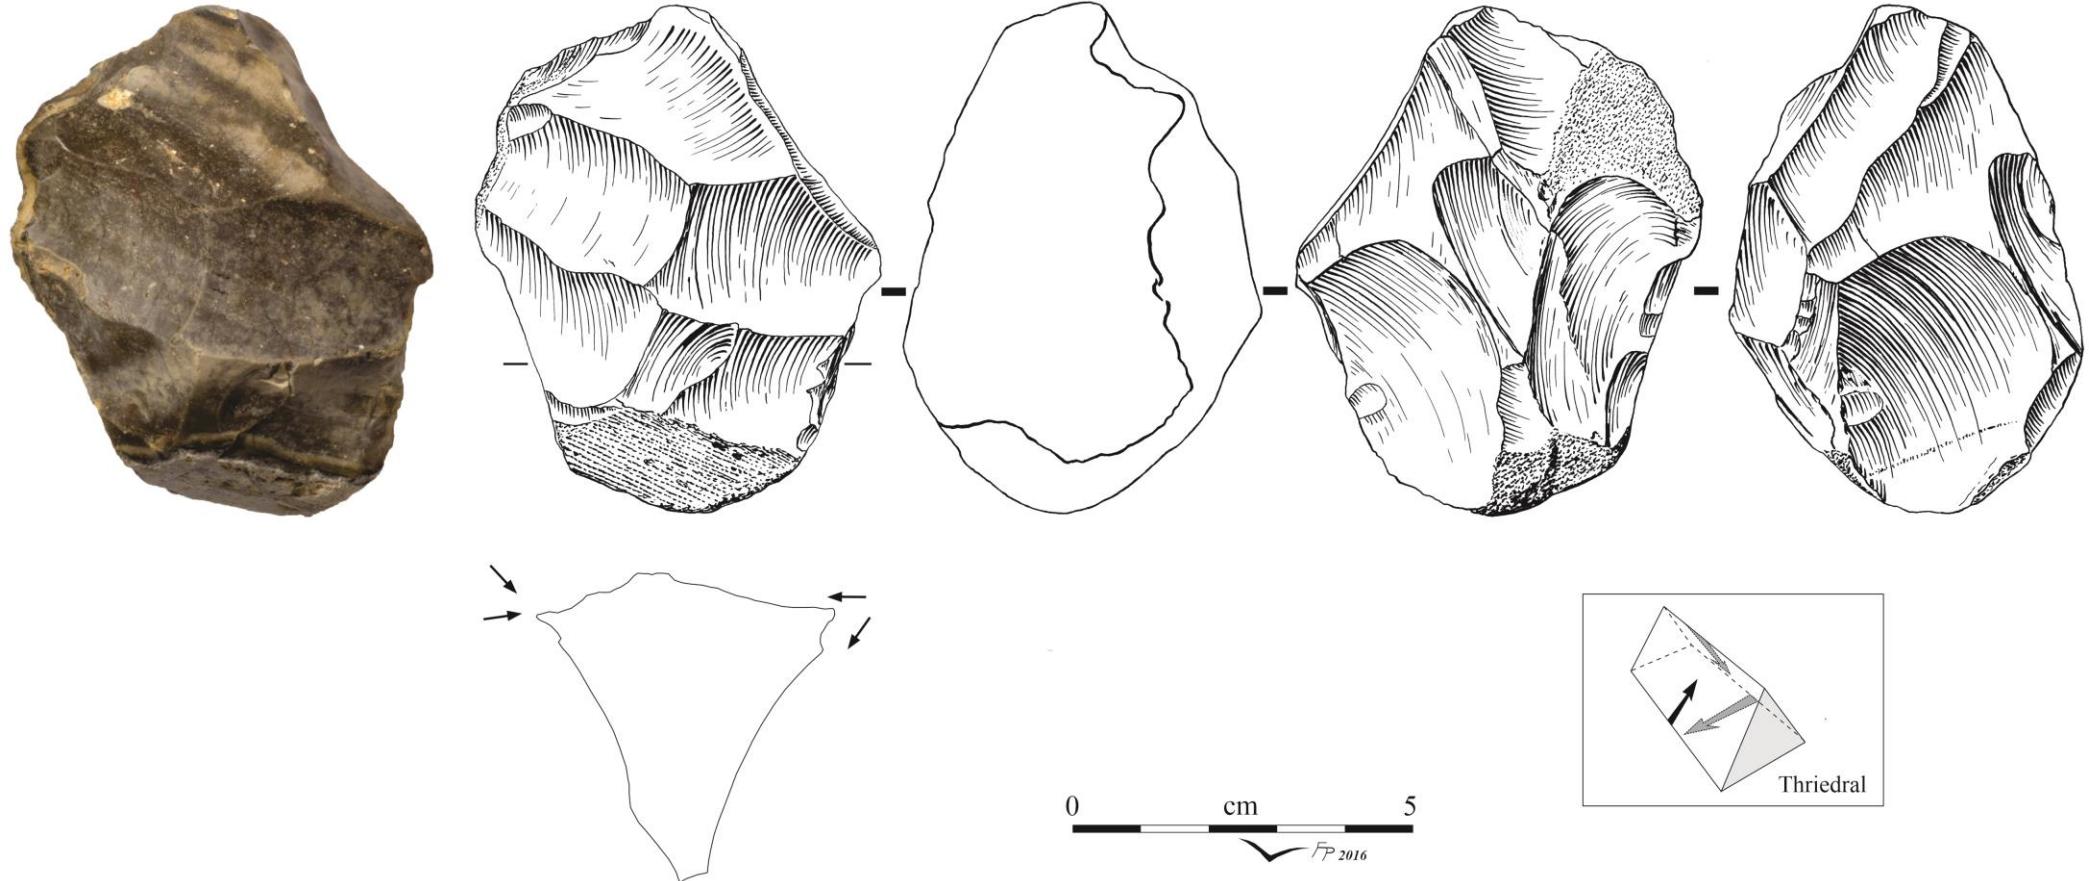

0 cm 5
FP 2016

334-1053

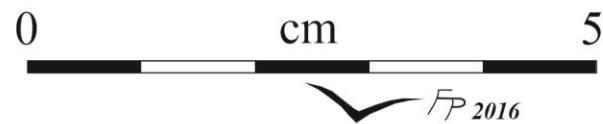

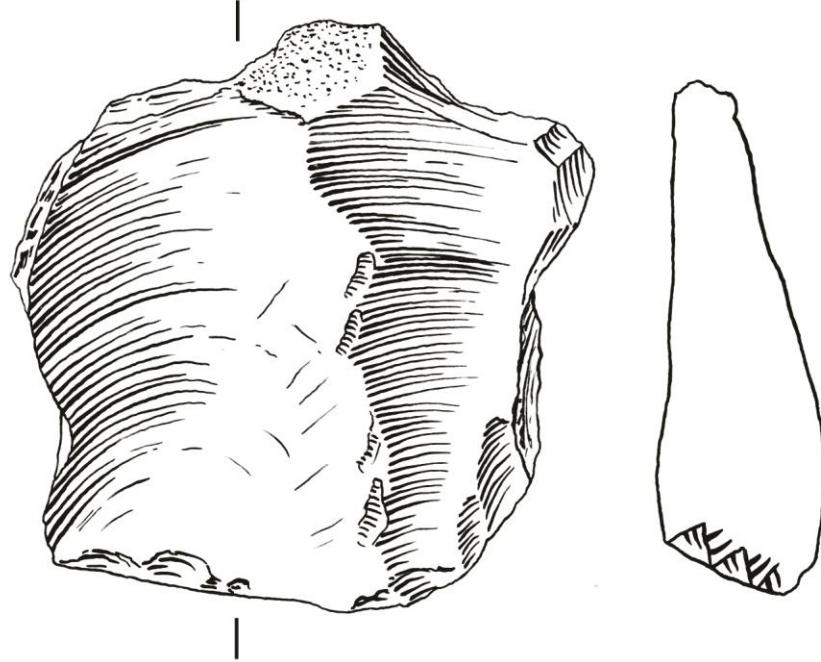

Back to section

Convex carinated scraper on large flint flake, broken in Siret, very abraded

334-1129 Fresh core with tridedral cross-section

Back to section

334-1065 Denticulated on very abraded, unipolar flake, cortical butt.

Back to section

334-1063 Unidirectional core on flint cobble.

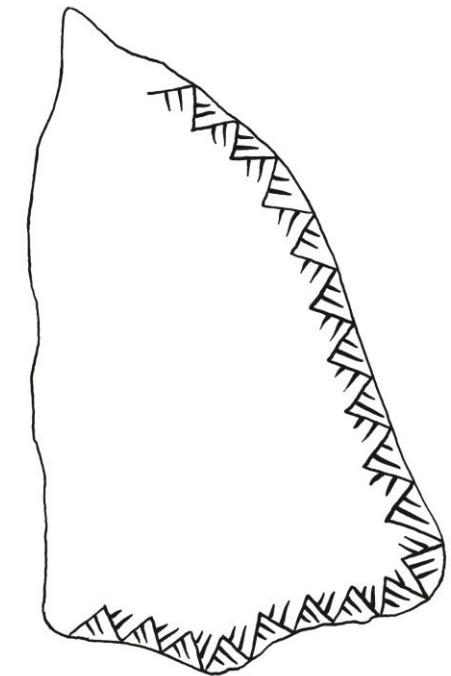

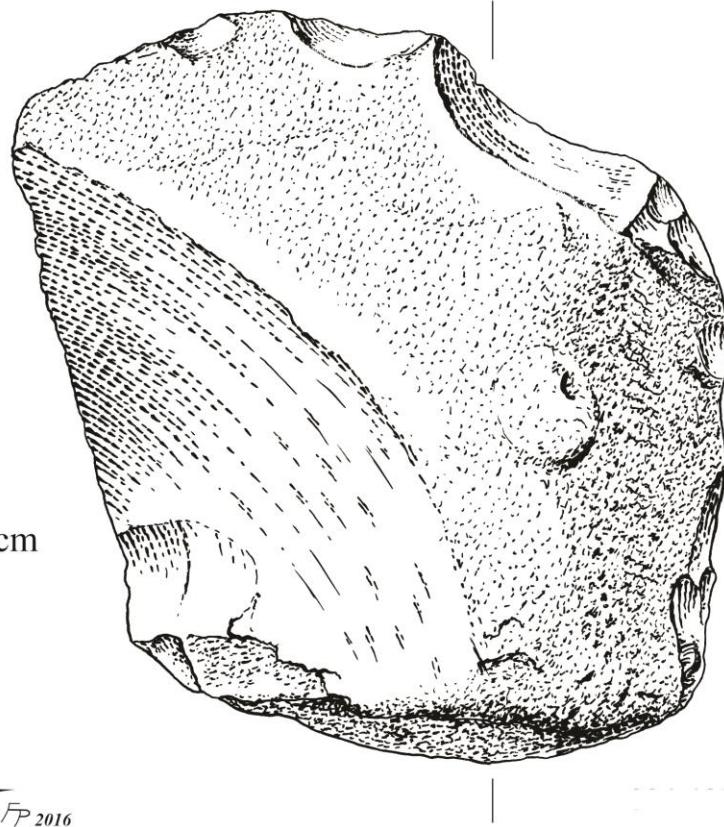

FP 2016

Back to section

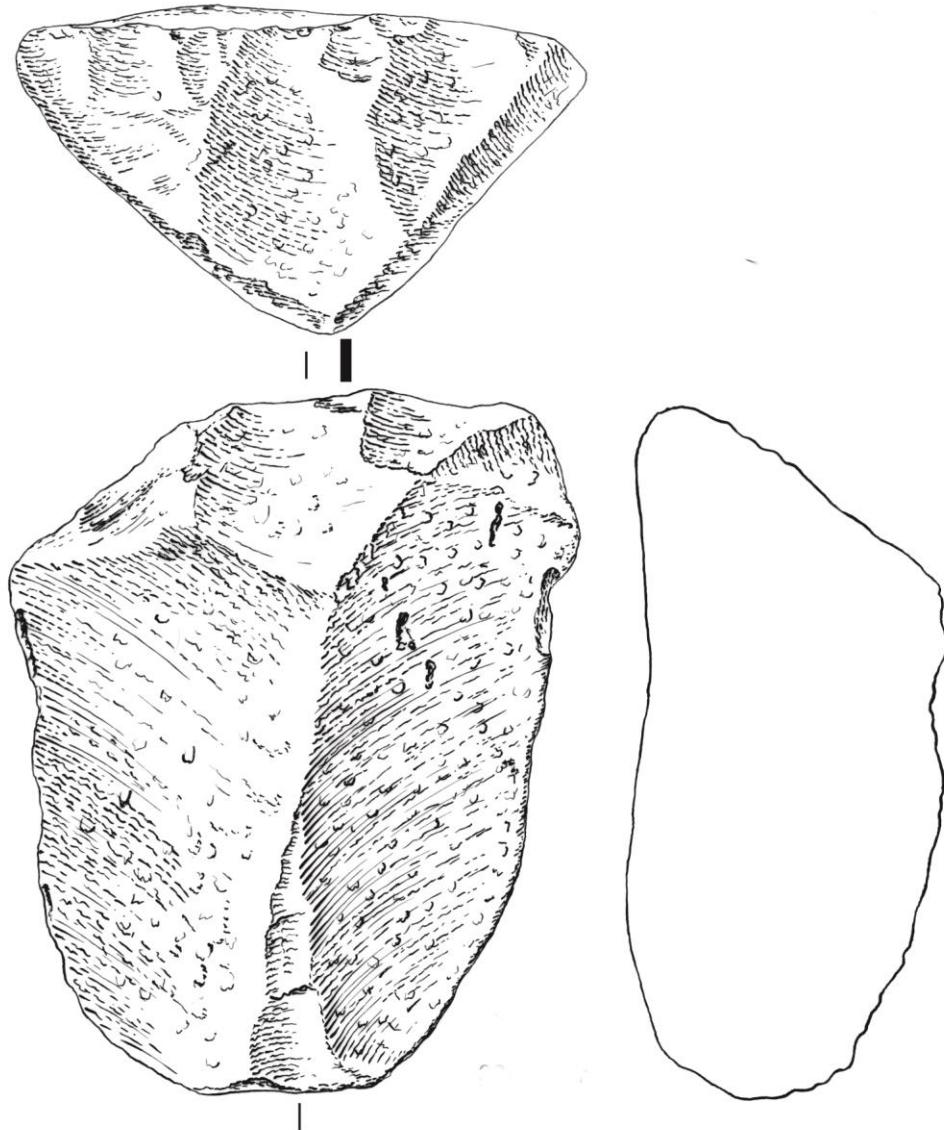

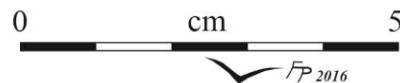

✓ FP 2016

334-1057/1 Thick retouched flake, very abraded.

Back to section

334-lower End scraper on thick and very abraded brown flint flake.

Back to section

0                    cm                    5
FP 2016

334-1098 End scraper plus notch.

Back to section

334-1104 Fragmentary flake.

Back to section